PLAINTIFFS' STATEMENT OF MATERIAL FACTS
TO WHICH THERE IS NO GENUINE ISSUE TO BE TRIED

Come now Plaintiffs, DAVID R. WILSON and CHARLENE WILSON, and pursuant to Local Rule 56.1(B)(2)(b), submit their Statement of Material Facts to Which There is No Genuine Issue to Be Tried as follows:

1. On September 7, 2004, Plaintiff David Wilson attended a TASER certification class as required for his employment as a Georgia State Patrol officer. [Wilson depo. (Dkt. No. 40), p. 54].

2. Wilson was shown a slide presentation designed to convince participants that no injuries had been incurred in training. [Dkt. No. 58-12].

3. Wilson was assured that he would be properly spotted and that he would not be injured. [Wilson depo. (Dkt. No. 40), pp. 64-67].

4. Wilson was held by three spotters and shot in the back with a TASER. [Wilson depo. (Dkt. No. 40), pp. 71-73].

5. Wilson described the exposure as “unbelievable . . . the pain was so bad I thought something had happened. I thought I was going to die . . .” [Wilson depo. (Dkt. No. 40), p. 73].

6. Wilson continued to experience intense pain following the TASER shock. [Wilson depo. (Dkt. No. 40), p. 75].

7. An ambulance was called within minutes of Wilson’s exposure to the TASER, and Wilson was taken to the hospital emergency room in Forsyth, Georgia. [Wilson depo. (Dkt. No. 40), pp. 78, 79].

8. The EMT report from Wilson’s transport to the hospital reflects that EMS responded to the training center class for major back pain following Wilson being shot with a stun gun. The EMT noted Wilson was sitting in a chair unable to stand up and described his pain as a 10 on a scale of 1 to 10. [Dkt. No. 58-9, p. 39].

9. Wilson arrived at the Monroe County Hospital Emergency Room at 11:45 a.m. in acute pain in the thoracic area of his back. [Dkt. No. 58-9, p. 33].

10. The nursing assessment form indicated Wilson’s pain level at a 10 out of 10. [Dkt. No. 58-9, p. 36].

11. The ER physician noted muscle spasms and recommended admission for pain control. [Dkt. No. 58-9, p. 34].

12. Wilson declined to be admitted, was given prescriptions for narcotic pain medication, and was discharged with instructions to see his personal physician. [Dkt. No. 58-9, pp. 34-39].

13. The following day, September 8, 2004, David Wilson arrived at Dr. Edward Meier's office in a wheelchair, unable to move. [Meier depo. (Dkt. No. 113), p. 95].

14. Dr. Meier obtained Mr. Wilson's medical records from Monroe County Hospital and noted that Mr. Wilson's pain was well out of proportion with the objective x-ray findings that he received from Monroe County Hospital. [Meier depo. (Dkt. No. 113), p. 95].

15. Dr. Meier took a history from Mr. Wilson, noting that he experienced severe pain upon being shot in the TASER training. He continued to experience severe pain even after he was given two shots of Morphine and sent home on Percocets and muscle relaxers. [Meier depo. (Dkt. No. 113), p. 96].

16. Dr. Meier noted from his review of the medical records from Monroe County Hospital on the day of Wilson's exposure that Mr. Wilson was in such pain that the ER physician wanted him admitted for pain control, which according to Dr. Meier was "highly unusual." [Meier depo. (Dkt. No. 113), p. 97].

17. Dr. Meier examined Mr. Wilson, noting extensive spasms and pain. [Meier depo. (Dkt. No. 113), p. 98]. Dr. Meier observed that Mr. Wilson's spine had a loss of lordosis and excessive kyphosis – Wilson’s “spine was straight with a lot of spasms and he was also hunched to one side.” [Meier depo. (Dkt. No. 113), p. 98].

18. Dr. Meier had no reason to doubt that Mr. Wilson was exposed to a TASER on September 7, 2004, or that he was “basically faking the pain or the spasm by both objective findings and the notes of the ER, and that’s why we kept him on narcotics.” [Meier depo. (Dkt. No. 113), p. 104-105].

19. Dr. Meier further opined that he had no reason to doubt that Mr. Wilson experienced a severe back injury on September 7, 2004. [Meier depo. (Dkt. No. 113), p. 105].

20. Prior to Wilson’s injury, TASER International had multiple opportunities to discover that its products were causing injuries.

21. One of TASER’s best customers was the Phoenix Police Department located within a few miles of the headquarters of TASER International.

22. In mid-February of 2003, the Phoenix Police Department experienced two TASER training injuries in one day. [Parra depo., p. 10].

23. The Department’s Training Bureau Commander, Susan Parra, became aware of other injuries and asked for a list of injuries to be compiled and sent to her. [Parra depo., p. 13].

24. Parra discovered that on February 8, 2002, officer Willie Collins suffered an injury to her left lower molar. [Parra depo., p. 14; Exh. 2 to Parra depo.]. On the same date, another officer injured a spinal disc and his right leg. [Parra depo., p. 15; Exh. 2 to Parra depo.].

25. On February 23, 2002, an officer suffered an injury to his lower back. [Parra depo., p. 14; Exh. 2 to Parra depo.].

26. In 2003, the Department experienced eight other injuries, three of those to the shoulder. [Parra depo., p. 15; Exh. 2 to Parra depo.].

27. As a result of the number of injuries incurred during training, in March of 2003, the Phoenix Police Department discontinued its policy of allowing officers to be exposed to TASERs. [Parra depo., pp. 16-17; Harris depo., p. 10].

28. In 2003, TASER's employee, Jami LaChapelle, who was in charge of scheduling trainings, learned from Lewis (Les) Fisher, a Phoenix Police Department trainer, that the Phoenix Police Department had stopped allowing its officers to be tased. [Dec. '07 LaChapelle depo., p. 16-17].

29. On February 8, 2002, Willie Collins, a Phoenix Police Department officer, attended a TASER training taught by Les Fisher, one of the instructors. Collins was told that there was no risk from being hit by the TASER. [Collins depo., p. 8]. Like David Wilson, Collins was held up by spotters and shot in the back. [Collins depo., p. 9]. Again, like David Wilson, Collins experienced severe pain after the TASER deployment had ended. [Collins depo., p. 11].

30. As a result of the exposure, Collins fractured a molar on her left jaw and developed three types of bone infections, requiring extensive treatment. [Collins depo., pp. 11-12]. Like Wilson, Collins' pain finally required her to retire as she was unable to continue her work as a police officer. [Collins depo., p. 14].

31. Some time in 2002, Collins was at TASER International's headquarters in Phoenix and had a discussion with a manager at TASER International by the name of Clay Winn. [Collins depo., pp. 14-15].

32. Winn's reaction to learning about Collins' serious injury was indifference. [Collins depo., p. 15]. Winn took no notes about the injury Collins described to him, filled out no reports, and made no promises to follow up with anyone at TASER about Collins' injury. [Collins depo., pp. 15-16].

33. On February 7, 2003, Detective Michael Eckenroth with the Phoenix Police Department attended a training session on the TASER device. [Eckenroth depo., p. 9]. The class was taught by Les Fisher.

34. Eckenroth was told that there should be no negative effects from being tased. [Eckenroth depo., p. 11].

35. Eckenroth was told to kneel and had a probe placed on his left calf and his right shoulder. [Eckenroth depo., p. 12].

36. After the exposure, Eckenroth was having a hard time breathing and a lot of pain in his body. [Eckenroth depo., p. 13].

37. Eckenroth, at the time of his deposition on December 5, 2007, was still suffering pain between his shoulder blades, which he has had continuously since the day of his exposure to the TASER device. [Eckenroth depo., pp. 15-17]. Eckenroth wakes up very sore every morning. [Eckenroth depo., p. 16]. Eckenroth, a 35-year old man, is in “absolute agony from any physical activity from beyond just walking.” [Eckenroth depo., pp. 17-18].

38. Like David Wilson, Eckenroth had no back problems prior to his exposure. [Eckenroth depo., p. 17].

39. In 2004, DGG TASER was the exclusive distributor of TASER products in Florida and Georgia. [Sundberg depo., p. 9-10]. Russell Stender and Mitchell Gray were the owners of DGG TASER. [Sundberg depo., pp. 9-10].

40. On August 18, 2004, Russell Stender, from DGG TASER, sent an e-mail to Stacie Sundberg, TASER’s Vice-President of Global Sales, informing her of a back injury to an officer during a training on June 22nd and 23rd, 2004. [Sundberg depo., pp. 7, 15; Exh. 2 to Sundberg depo.].

41. Sundberg forwarded the e-mail to TASER’s corporate counsel, Doug Klint, and Steve Tuttle, TASER’s Vice-President of Communications. [Sundberg depo., p. 15]. No action was taken.

42. On October 28, 2003, Officer Jeffrey Burt, an officer with the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, attended a TASER training. [Burt depo., p. 42, Exh. A attached hereto].

43. Burt was given the impression that no injuries had been documented as far as law enforcement officers taking the training. [Burt depo. (Exh. A), p. 52]. Burt was told that, “once it is off, you are completely back to normal. Basically saying, you get zapped, the gun is off, you are back to normal, 100 percent.” [Burt depo. (Exh. A), p. 65].

44. Like Wilson, Burt was held by spotters before being exposed in the back. [Burt depo. (Exh. A), p. 68].

45. After the exposure, Burt felt “like somebody stuck a knife in my back.” [Burt depo. (Exh. A), p. 77]. Six weeks after the training, after experiencing continuing back pain, Burt finally went to a physician, who sent him to physical therapy. [Burt depo. (Exh. A), pp. 84-85].

46. On July 29, 2004, Officer Burt had an MRI scan, which showed two healed compression fractures. [Burt depo., (Exh. A), p. 90].

47. On January 16, 2004, John Jewett, a deputy with the Columbia County, Florida Sheriff’s Office, attended a TASER training in Valdosta, Georgia. [Jewett depo., pp. 60-61, Exh. B attached hereto]. Mitchell Gray, owner of DGG TASER, was the instructor for the class. [Jewett depo. (Exh. B), p. 62].

48. Jewett was never told that the TASER could cause serious injuries. [Jewett depo. (Exh. B), p. 67].

49. Jewett was exposed by having the wires taped to his left shoulder and to the back of his left hip. [Jewett depo. (Exh. B), p. 86].

50. Jewett was held in place by two other officers. [Jewett depo. (Exh. B), p. 93].

51. Like David Wilson, after the exposure ended, Jewett had trouble breathing and experienced severe pain. [Jewett depo. (Exh. B), pp. 94-98]. The pain continued to get worse until Jewett was taken to the hospital. [Jewett depo. (Exh. B), pp. 94-102].

52. After Jewett returned home, he continued to have severe pain. On January 18, 2004, Jewett went to the hospital, where he was diagnosed with two compression fractures in his spine. [Jewett depo. (Exh. B), pp. 110-111].

53. Despite Plaintiffs' specific requests to produce information concerning training injuries, TASER International produced little information, forcing Plaintiffs to go to great trouble and expense to obtain documents which should have been produced in discovery.

54. Although TASER admitted to having received notice of a back injury to Samuel Powers, a Maricopa County, Arizona Sheriff's Deputy, TASER failed to produce documents concerning that injury, as well as injuries to other officers. [Dec. '07 Tuttle depo., pp. 7-23; Exhs. 2, 3 and 4 to Tuttle depo.].

55. In addition, TASER destroyed a stack of exposure reports documenting training injuries which occurred prior to Wilson's exposure. [Schreiner depo., p. 88].

56. TASER's SEC filings list lawsuits arising from numerous training injuries undisclosed by TASER in discovery in this case. [Exh. C attached hereto].

57. In January of 2005, TASER finally changed its warning to apprise law enforcement personnel participating in trainings of the true risks of exposure. [Dkt No. 58-13].

Respectfully submitted this 2nd day of June, 2008.
